In the expectation that they will find under it the body of Miss Theresa Engel, daughter of John W. Engel, a Yonkers laundry proprietor. The woman physician has disappeared.

Miss Engel was eighteen years old, attractive and was graduated from high school last June. She made her home with her parents at No. 123 Orchard Street, Yonkers. She has not been seen for two weeks.

The Yonkers police learned of her disappearance last night, when Henry Berger, a young man living in Mount Vernon, called on Chief Wolf and asked if he was "wanted" in connection with the disappearance of Miss Engel. Berger said the girl's relatives had been threatening him.

EXPECT ARREST SOON IN KNOWLES MURDER

Sheriff and Police, Working Together, Are Looking Up Promising Clue.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 21.—Deputy Sheriff Calvin and Inspector Ahern and Godfrey of Police Headquarters went to-day to Detroit in a motor car to run down a new clue in the Knowles murder case which the authorities regard as promising. It may carry them across the line into Connecticut.

JOHN D. JR. EATS AND TALKS WITH BEGRIMED MINERS

On Incognito Visit to Ludlow, He Learns Conditions Under Which They Live.

SEES SCENE OF FIGHT. Suggests Improvements in Miners' Homes and Chats With Their Leader.

TRINIDAD, Col., Sept. 21.—With his identity unknown to most of the persons he talked to, John D. Rockefeller Jr. is learning by persistent questioning just what the residents of the various coal camps owned and controlled by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company think of the administration of that corporation, reflecting as it does the Rockefeller policy.

Mr. Rockefeller, who had traveled all the way from New York without his destination being known, stepped from an ordinary sleeping car on the Santa Fe yesterday. The young millionaire was keeping his promise made to Mother Jones last winter to visit Colorado and see conditions for himself.

He first visited the Ludlow battleground of April 20, 1913. The position of the strikers and militia and their movements during the day were pointed out and explained while Mr. Rockefeller listened without comment. From Ludlow the party went to Berwind, where the capitalist left his car and went among the laborers.

He sat down and ate dinner with coal diggers at the camp boarding house to see what kind of food was served and later he talked to a dust-begrimed mine foreman. He did not introduce himself to this man nor did the miners at the boarding house know who was the serious faced young man at the same table with them.

He did break his resolve to learn things incognito when he sat for half an hour on the porch of a tumble-down shack in the Berwind Coal Mining Company and talked with Dan Morell, representative of the coal miners in the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company camp.

"Look here, Mr. Morell," said Mr. Rockefeller, "I want to have a heart to heart talk with you. Just forget that I am a wealthy man and talk frankly to me as you would to any of your brother miners. I believe this thing of labor and capital fighting is all wrong. I am a developer of the biggest part of my time to bringing about peace between labor and capital, and I want you to tell me frankly what I can do to help matters in this camp."

Morell told Mr. Rockefeller that the new system inaugurated by President J. F. Welborn of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company was proving an excellent help to the mine. This plan is for the miners to elect one of their number as the representative of all to take up any grievance on the part of the miners with any company official. Morell was elected under this scheme.

He told Mr. Rockefeller that improvements might be made in the houses provided for the miners by the company.

"All right," said Mr. Rockefeller. "Let's go and see some of these homes. I have come West to see for myself if the reports of the conditions which my managers have been sending me are absolutely true."

Morell and Mr. Rockefeller visited a dozen homes of miners in the little settlement. The first was one of the oldest houses in the camp.

"This place does not look very inviting," said Mr. Rockefeller. "Why cannot we have better houses in place of such buildings as this?" he asked of President Welborn.

Mr. Welborn explained to Mr. Rockefeller that the plan was drawn for replacing these old houses with new and modern homes.

"How much rent do the men pay for a house like this?" asked Mr. Rockefeller.

"Two dollars for each room a month," said Morell. "There are four rooms in this house and that makes $8 a month."

"Well," said Mr. Rockefeller, "I think it would cut down their living expenses if these women would devote some time to gardens. I think the company should provide them with little gardens about each house, well fenced in and with a supply of seed for staple vegetables."

Without Health You are not an Optimist

Optimism, which is another name for courage, is one of the most potent factors in human progress. It enables one to rally when defeat is encountered, to be brave in the face of disappointments, to fight on and on until the battle of life has been won and the heart's desire is satisfied. And optimism is best preserved in the body that is free from pain, that is not impaired by weakness. So those who take care of the health by taking Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as prescribed, are not only preserving that which will add immensely to the joy of living, but are taking care of that which will be a mighty contribution to their success in meeting and triumphing over the difficulties encountered along the road to success. Duffy's exerts a very agreeable and beneficial action upon one's digestion and imparts a feeling of strength and vigor—that's why. Because Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a true food tonic which helps feed the nerves, to increase the energy and gives fresh vigor to the overworked body and mind; many thousands regularly "Get Duffy's and keep well," and are, therefore, true optimists who give no thought to pessimistic beliefs.—Adv.

ADJUSTER EXPECTS BRADLEY'S DEFICIT TO REACH $100,000

Bank Officials Say Lloyd Policy Protects Them to Amount of $130,000.

A CLUE IN NEW HAVEN. Friend Saw Missing Teller There After Finding of Wrecked Auto.

LAST heard from in New Haven Friday, the day after his overturned automobile was found at the edge of a pond near Stamford, Henry H. Bradley, missing teller of the Merchants' National Bank, No. 42 Wall Street, is being actively sought by detectives in Connecticut.

Daniel N. Gage, Secretary of the Aetna Accident and Liability Company of Hartford, which is on the missing teller's bond for $10,000, said to-day that Adjuster W. H. Jenkins of that company had reported Bradley's shortage would be $100,000 or more, if known discrepancies in the teller's accounts indicate the truth.

As the investigation in the Aetna office said at the bank that Bradley will have to be caught quickly if any of the money is recovered. That is why the search for the missing teller is being conducted with haste.

A friend of Bradley is authority for the statement that he was seen in New Haven Saturday night. According to that friend, Bradley was on the street, his appearance unobtrusive and nothing about him to indicate he wished to hide from observation. That was more than twenty-four hours after the discovery of the automobile at the Stamford pond, which is now called "a frame-up."

Officials of the Aetna Company say they have learned the bank is prepared to the amount of $130,000 by a "blanket" Lloyd's policy on losses such as Bradley's apparent shortage. Arthur H. Clark, local agent of Lloyd's, said, however, that he knew nothing of such a policy.

One of Bradley's friends told to-day of his stock speculations. "Anything he invested in seemed to rise in value at once," he told representatives of the Aetna Company. "If he took money to speculate, I would think from what I know of his playing the market, that he must have made a great deal more than enough to pay back all he had stolen. I should think he would be worth a snug little fortune."

Bradley's salary was $35 a week and he lived on a modest scale, although he owned a touring car that is said to have cost $1,100. His duties at the bank required him to handle, in checks from out-of-town banks, "hundreds of millions of dollars," according to Joseph Byrne, Vice President and Cashier of the Merchants' National. He handled no actual cash.

If he stole any money, it is asserted, it was by cashing checks that he took out of the bank and by keeping up an endless chain of such personages in order that each out-of-town depositor's account might be covered when the time came for a withdrawal to be rendered. That is, he would have to steal one check, use the money, and then steal another, each it and replace previous checks in time to cover himself when statements were to be sent depositions.

Witness M. Smith, resident Vice President and Vice President of the Building Department of the Aetna Company, says the first indication anything was wrong with Bradley's affairs reached the bank in a letter from an out-of-town depositor referring to a certain check, sent by mail a few days before and arriving at the bank a day or two before Bradley left on his vacation. The check disappeared and Bradley was suspected.

It is understood that the President does not favor the calling of a special session of the Upper House of Congress for the purpose of taking up the Nicaraguan and Colombian treaties and considering the proposition to modify its rules.

There is much talk among United States Senators of a special session. It is believed that a majority of the Democratic Senators would like the President to issue a call to bring them to Washington.

Senator James of Kentucky, who is close to the President, said to-day that he knows of no intention on the part of the latter to call a special session. Senator Stone of Missouri will see the President some day this week, nevertheless.

When You Wash Your Hair Don't Use Soap

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp, and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mild, sweet almond oil, for this is pure and entirely innocuous. It is very cheap, and beats soap or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Adv.

WILSON NOT CONSIDERING EXTRA SENATE SESSION

Does Not Favor Calling the Upper House to Ratify Treaties and Amend Rules.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—White House officials said to-day that the question of a special session of the Senate is not being considered by the President now.
